BOSTON — WorldCare International, Inc. (WorldCare) recently announced that Kat Freeman will join the company as Senior Sales Executive.

Freeman brings over 10 years of experience in corporate benefits and insurance to WorldCare. Having spent many years with Unum Group, then NFP Corp., she possesses perspective from the carrier, broker and consulting sides of the industry. Freeman's experience includes advising executive leadership, finance and HR professionals on decisions relating to corporate benefits programs. Based at WorldCare's headquarters in Boston, she will focus on fostering new client relationships across the U.S., while managing existing client relationships.

"When first introduced, I knew I had to work with WorldCare, due to how deeply I share their mission. For over 23 years, WorldCare has enabled companies, outside of the U.S., to provide employees and their families access to the greatest medical experts and institutions in the world. WorldCare is human-centric; with a mission focused on obtaining better health outcomes for every life touched, and as a result, everyone wins," said Freeman. "I am honored to be a part of this organization and share WorldCare with more people here in the United States."

"Kat's experience in corporate benefits and insurance will significantly assist WorldCare in its continued growth in the U.S.," said Nasser Menhall, Chief Executive Officer, WorldCare. "We wholeheartedly welcome Kat and her years of experience to the WorldCare team."
